How to get to... (first read this)

İstanbul is a very large city. However it has an extensive public transportation network. The fare for transportation is reasonable. Getting from one place to the other may take long. Do not get intimidated. Be patient. Depending on the route you choose, you will either take a metro, a Metrobüs, a bus, a Dolmuş, a HAVATAŞ shuttle , a taxi or a sequence of these. Here are some general tips:

Divide the price in liras by 3 to convert it to Euros and by 2.25 to convert to US Dollars approximately.

You cannot buy ticket on a vehicle. If you plan to use public transport many times, buy a prepaid İSTANBULKART. To buy an İstanbulKart, you need to pay a non-refundable 6 TL fee (for the actual card and the service), and of course an amount of your choice to load onto the card. You get transfer discount automatically if you use an İstanbulKart. If you will not use public transport except coming from/going to airports, you might buy cards that have several rides in them. With those cards, you do not have transfer discount.

Cabs are usually trustworthy. Yet always make sure that the taxi driver turns the meter on. The trip durations given below are on the average. There might be drastic traffic jams.

İstanbul Atatürk Airport (IST) and Boğaziçi University South and North Campuses are on the European side of İstanbul.

Sabiha Gökçen International Airport (SAW) is on the Asian side of İstanbul.
